FOREWORD

This book was written and compiled by Carl Martin Felland, my father. The data contained herein was gathered by him through a period of many years. Most of the older data was written down by him at the dictation of his aged mother in the summer of 1887. During the last few years of his life he spent much time on this work, and was on the verge of having this document published when he was overtaken by death on June 10, 1938.

We, his surviving family, after making a few minor additions, have made arrangements with the Mohn Printing company of Northfield, Minn., for the publication of this work.

Acknowledgement is hereby made that there are undoubtedly numerous mistakes in this book, as there is bound to be in a work of this size and nature.

Furthermore, these family records are in many cases far from being complete. Indeed, I doubt if a work of this scope could ever be entirely complete.

However, in spite of its many shortcomings, there is a vast amount of information contained herein that will be invaluable to future generations when the mists of time begin to obscure the origin of our families.

August, 1940.

EYVIND FELLAND

ORIGIN OF THE NORWEGIAN PEOPLE

Of late years we have heard so much about the Norse people and their doings in this country during the last hundred years as well as in Norway proper; of the big men we have produced in church, science, literature, state, and in the business world. But there has not been said much about the origin of our people as a nation or the causes that have made it the progressive, wide-awake people such as we know it today.

I have been thinking that it would be interesting to all of us to trace our ancestors back as far as we can. It certainly has been interesting to me.

The written history of our people extends back only about one thousand years; or to the time Norway was consolidated into one state by the renowned King Harold (The Fair-Haired) after his final big naval victory in Hafrsfjord near Stavanger in 874. Norway, although she lies in the extreme northern end of Europe, was one of the earliest states to become a distinct nation. Sweden and Denmark were somewhat earlier, England and Scotland about the same time, France and Germany about ten years later at the peace of Verdun.

So you will see that Norway is no newcomer among the nations of Europe. She was yet pagan, but so were Sweden, Denmark, and more than half of Germany, all of Poland, Finland, and all the other small countries around the Baltic sea, and big Russia. Before Harold's (The Fair-Haired) days she was divided into thirty independent states more or less, some states ruled by petty kings, others by "jarls," or earls as we say in English. These were all deposed, and governors appointed by the king put in their place. The old aristocracy resented the new order of things in the country, and as they were too weak to rebel against the king they decided to leave the country and move with as much of their belongings as they were able to handle, to the newly discovered island, Iceland, and found new homes there. That was the way Iceland became settled so rapidly. They organized a republic with the first representative congress in Europe, and a supreme court. Their form of government was that of a republic although not a democratic republic as we have here in the United States. It was more like the conditions of our southern states before the Civil war. They took their slaves along from Norway, as many as they could carry in their small ships. They prospered in their new homes and they built up a marvelous civilization in that northern clime that many historians have compared to that of the old Greeks. The amount of literature they have left us is marvelous. The population of Iceland today is not much over one hundred thousand.

FELLAND-REINDAHL FAMILY HISTORY

But let us turn back to Norway proper and to the conditions of Europe.

We do not know when man first appeared in Europe. I do not want to talk about the so-called Piltdown man found in England some years ago, nor of the Neanderthal man's bones found in Germany. The first race of man that science has found in Europe fully developed like us here, no monkeys or near-monkeys, was the so-called "Cro-Magnon Race" named after the little village of that name in the southwest part of France. In a cave near that village were found a most remarkable collection of human skulls, skeletons, and parts of skeletons and their stone weapons, tools, and drawings on bones of animals and on smooth stones, of the most common animals of that period. This was during the so-called glacial period. Their drawing were remarkably good for a people in the early stone age: Mastodons, reindeer, bears, etc. Later on French archeologists found dwelling places and remains of this highly gifted race from one end of France to the other. By the way, in the Logan museum at Beloit college there is a collection of artifacts and other remains of this race, said to be the best in the United States, brought from France by a Beloit college student of archeology. This might be of interest to any of you ladies and gentlemen who are interested in archeology and in the first known full-fledged human race to settle in Europe. The Cro-Magnon race has been extinct for ages back. By the way, there are some scientists who believe that the tribe of "Basques" in northern Spain and in southwestern France, who have fought so desperately for their homes and the preservation of their racial peculiarities, are remnants of the old Cro-Magnon race. Their racial tradition and their language is different from that of any other people on earth, scientists tell us.

Anthropologists tell us that in course of time this race degenerated, decreased in numbers very much. The physical peculiarities by which we distinguish the Cro-Magnon race from other white races are principally in the shape of their skull. The Cro-Magnons were a well built race judging from the bones we find of them. Their skull was long from the face to the back of the head, but the face itself was not long and thin as on the later-coming Aryan race. Their complexion and color of hair we don't know much about.

After the Cro-Magnon it seems that the next race to occupy Europe extensively was a people whom we shall for convenience call the Dark race. They were a white race but dark complexioned, with black hair and dark eyes. They were rather short of stature but stockily built. Their skull was short up and down but broad between the ears. The physical qualities of this short-skulled, round-headed Dark race were in quite sharp contrast to the physical peculiarities of the later-coming Aryan race.

The Aryans were tall and blond, with a tall skull that was narrow between the ears. This, of course, would give them a rather long, narrow face.

Let me say at once that none of the white races is pureblooded now anymore. In course of time they have intermixed with one another in Asia, in North Africa, and in Europe.

When the "Dark Race" came into Europe is just guesswork, but it was some time during the glacial period. And when that period started or ended is also only guesswork. All that we know about the Cro-Magnon race and the Dark race is only what we have been able to dig out of the ground from caves, from kitchen middens, "kjökken möddinger" as the Danes call them, and from burial places. The skulls tell us to what race the body belonged.

The round-headed, dark complexioned white race came into Europe from some place in western Asia, taking their way across or north of the Red sea, there most likely following the south shore of the Mediterranean sea until they came to the present Tunis, then making their way across the Mediterranean to Sicily and into Italy proper on the numerous small islands between the two continents. This was during the great glacial period. The water was low at that time, geologists tell us. Big stretches of the North sea were dry land and at one time the Baltic sea was covered with dense pine forests. This new race made its way up the Italian peninsula and eventually across the mountains and into western and central Europe. What time they came and how long a time it took them is mere guesswork. As mentioned before this was during the "glacial" period. When that period began and when it ended is also one of the riddles in nature that has not been solved, and I think it is safe to say that it never will be.

Northern Europe, as well as a great part of North America east of the Rocky mountains was covered by a tremendous blanket of ice. In geology this period is usually known as the Proto-Glacial. In Europe this great ice field covered all of Norway, Sweden, Finland, Denmark, the Baltic provinces, the north half of Russia, northern Poland, northern Germany, all of Holland, all of the Baltic and North seas, as well as all of Scotland and the greater part of England.

After a long time there was a rise in temperature and the ice and snow gradually melted away and in due time the land was covered with vegetation. But the Northern countries, Norway, Sweden, and Finland, were only partially thawed out. The south part of the west coast of Norway seems to have been left bare, but just how far inland the glacier retreated is a disputed question among scholars. But enough of the land was left bare so that a hardy race of men who depended on hunting and fishing for their living could subsist.

Sweden, extending farther south than Norway, it seems, had more bare land. Denmark was all bare, and so was Germany. It seems that the dark complexioned race that we have spoken of moved north and began to settle in northern Germany and Denmark and, in course of time, found their way into Sweden and Norway. These people were of the so-called "early stone age" development. Their weapons and tools were of the most primitive kind, made from wood, bone, horn, and crudely chipped stone. They were, as you see, of the early stone age, somewhat like the Eskimos were before they came in contact with white people. This period is known as the Inter-Glacial period and how long it lasted is also a disputed question.

After a while there was another gradual drop in temperature both in Europe and in North America. Norway was covered again with ice, leaving only a narrow fringe of bare ground on the west and south coasts just about like the southwest coast of Greenland is today; thus driving the population to the extreme outer shore line. Sweden did not fare much better. Most, if not all, of the Baltic sea was covered with ice down to the shore of Mecklenburg and Holstein, in fact, forming the Baltic shore line of Germany as we find it today. This period is usually called the Deuto-Glacial period.

After the Deuto-Glacial period the ice retreated northward again and we now come to the time when Norway and the other northern countries in Europe were fit for man to live in. Geologists tell us that the climate of the Scandinavian countries was milder then, than it is today. Now we must turn to the next great race to occupy Europe, the Aryan race.

That celebrated anthropologist of the Smithsonian institution with the unpronounceable Polish name tells us that the original home of the Aryan race was the southwestern part of Siberia and the southeastern part of Russia. Of the origin of that race we can safely say that we know nothing. The Aryan race is the most remarkable race of man in the world. They were tall and powerfully built, they were blondes, blue-eyed, flaxen-haired with flaxen beard, and I think that I am safe in stating that they were the greatest race that ever lived on this footstool of ours. Now there are no pure-blooded Aryans left. We, the living descendants, are all of mixed blood in spite of all the blustering of Adolph Hitler.

Norwegians and Swedes have perhaps the biggest percentage of Aryan blood in their veins of any nationality in the whole world. When our Aryan forefathers lived in their early homes in southwestern Siberia and southeastern Russia they were a people of herds-men, having domesticated the sheep, goat, the horned cattle and the horse. They had some of the best ranges in the whole world to graze their cattle on. But in course of time for some reason or other they began to pull up their stakes and move out. It may have been because of lack of room or more probably it was because of pressure from the Mongolian hordes from the east. Some Aryan tribes trekked south and east into Hindustan and made themselves masters of that big, rich land. Later on two Aryan tribes, the Medes and the Persians, overran Assyria and Mesopotamia and made themselves masters of the big Babylonian empire that we read about in our Bible. Later on they conquered all western Asia and Egypt in Africa. Arabia they did not consider worthwhile to trouble about. The Greek tribes of the Aryan race trekked west and south until they came to the Aegean sea, then they turned south and made themselves masters of the land known as Greece today. The Latins turned down into Italy. The Celts or, Kelts, crossed the Rhine and made themselves masters of all the land west of the Rhine. In course of time they crossed the English channel, and in time made themselves lords of all the British islands.

Now we come to our own forefathers, the so-called Teutonic or Germanic branch of the Aryan race. Our Teutonic forefathers also moved with their cattle into central Europe and evidently made that part of Europe their home for a while. The old and perhaps the true theory is that the Teutonic branch of the Aryan race has lived there ever since and that their racial peculiarities, their language, and religion developed there; and that when the population increased so that it became crowded, some of them decided that they had better go and find other homes. South of the Alps, in Italy, there was no room, west of the Rhine lived the Celts who did not want any immigrants. So some of them made their way up the peninsula of Jylland across the belts into Fyen and Sjælland and into Skaane, the southern part of the big Scandinavian peninsula. There was lots of land and the people living there were that poor, backward and primitive, dark complexioned race that had formerly occupied Europe but were now largely driven to the mountains and swamps, and such out of the way places, where they are found to this day on the continent of Europe. In Norway, however, the present remnants of that race are found near the seacoast.

Our Aryan ancestors made them slaves, as the other Aryan tribes south of the Baltic had also done.

Now there is another school of anthropology that has many followers in Germany and in the Scandinavian countries, even in the United States. They tell us that the so-called Teutonic race of the big Aryan family did not stop long in central Europe for some reason or other, but moved northwards to the present Jylland and across the Danish belts into Skaane and in course of time settled around the big lakes in Sweden and eastern Norway and that it was there they developed their racial peculiarities and their religion, the so-called "Asa Faith," worship of Odin, Thor, Freia, etc., and their system of law and courts. They settled mostly around the big lakes and fjords.

In Sweden, north of the big lake "Malmen" was the great center for worship and politics. Where the city of Upsala now stands was their principal place of worship.

Now, as we all know, the tillable land in Norway and Sweden is very limited. As the population increased, the surplus population had to emigrate and find new homes. Nowadays people emigrate as individuals or as families, but in those savage days this method was not practical. About the only way in those days was for a whole tribe to take sword in hand and trek until they could find a place where there was room for them, or they came upon a smaller or weaker tribe than themselves and made themselves masters of their land. Now there are many reasons that would indicate that this was the way things shaped themselves for our Teutonic branch of our Aryan race.

Two of the strongest and most renowned of the Teutonic tribes were the West Goths, also called in history the Visigoths, and the Ostro- or East Goths. Roman historians tell us that these two tribes at the time of Christ had their homes in what is now the extreme northern part of Poland and East Prussia. About two hundred years later we find these same two tribes occupying most of southern Europe, from the Black sea to the Atlantic. My reason for mentioning these two tribes is to prove that these two tribes came from southern Sweden, from the so-called "Gotha Rike." Gotha Rike has from time immemorial been divided into "Vaster Gothland" and "Öster Gothland." Furthermore, out in the Baltic sea is a big island named "Gotland." It therefore seems most logical to believe that these Gothic tribes came from Sweden, because these three provinces in Sweden are the only places in all Europe by that name, excepting a tiny city in the equally tiny duchy of Saxen-Coburg-Gotha in northwestern Germany.

In the final break-up of the great Roman empire these two Scandinavian tribes played a leading part. The leader of the East Gothic tribes made himself king of all Italy, the heart of the Roman empire. The leader of the West Goths made himself king of southern France and all of the present Spain and Portugal. Scandinavian tradition has it that the Lombards, who later made themselves masters of all Italy from the city of Rome to the Alps, had also come from Scandinavia. Those of you who are familiar with modern Italian history have noticed that nearly all the big men of that country have been born north of Rome.

FELLAND-REINDAHL FAMILY HISTORY

But now back to Norway. As stated before we have good reason to believe that the "Dark Race" had settled on the shores of southern and western Norway and Sweden during the Inter-Glacial period and had been able to eke out an existence during the Deuto-Glacial period.

It seems that our Aryan forefathers did not come into Norway or the other two Scandinavian countries until after the glacial period. Our Aryan forefathers had come into the so-called later stone age of civilization, that means that they had fine stone tools and weapons, that they had herds of cattle and sheep, had tamed the horse and dog, and practiced a simple farming. When they settled in the three Scandinavian countries they made the dark complexioned race their slaves. When they came there we don't know. But they have been there a long time. Our Aryan forefathers did not intermarry with their slaves, but the menfolks did not hesitate to have intercourse with their good looking slave girls. However, the children were not recognized by their fathers any more than were the illegal Negro babies of the slave owning southerners in the United States. They remained slaves as their mothers. The slave in old Norway could not hold nor acquire property. However, in course of time, soon after the introduction of Christianity, the distinction between master and slave was finally lost.

In Norway and the other two Scandinavian countries the people eventually learned the use first of bronze and later on of iron; learned to build boats and later on ships; learned to build houses of wood for themselves and for their cattle. The woman learned to spin and to weave cloth of wool and later on also of flax. Our Aryan forefathers worshipped Odin and Thor, the god of war, and Freia, the goddess of love and wedlock, besides other lesser deities. The desire of good men, or rather good warriors, was to come to Valhalla after death. Valhalla was not like our Christian heaven. The pastime of men there was to fight between themselves all day, if they could hold out that long without being killed. In the evening those who were killed in the day's fight were carried into the big banquet hall where they came to life again and took their seats at the big banquet table and ate and drank until they became so drunk and sleepy that they dropped onto the straw-covered floor. Next morning they repeated the same process over again, and so on in all eternity. It seems that their gods and goddesses had forgotten to furnish a place for the ladies after death.

We have spoken of the Dark race that settled in Norway during the glacial period, and also of our Teutonic branch of the Aryan race that came later. There is also, however, a third race of people that live in Norway, the Laplanders. They are a Mongolian tribe that made its way into Norway via north of the Baltic sea. Of that race we know the least. We don't know whether the Aryans or the Lapps were the earlier. The Lapps live only in the northern parts of Norway and keep to themselves. They still remain a race apart, whereas the other two races have merged.

I might add that during the 16th century a number of Gypsies came to Norway as they did to all other parts of Europe. They have by now been largely assimilated by the lower elements of the country. They are called "Fanter."

Norway is big (120,000 square miles, more or less), but the land is so rough and mountainous and so sparsely settled that its population is less than three million today. We have reason to believe that there are as many Norwegians in the United States as in the mother country now.

LIFE IN NORWAY

Our people have come from the parish of Mo (Mo Sokn) in the Upper Telemark valley in southern Norway. The topography of Telemarken is different from that of the rest of Norway. Most of the provinces of Norway are either big inland valleys such as Gudbrandsdal, Vällers, and Hallingdal, or else consists of the level land surrounding some fjord, such as Sogn and Hardanger.

Telemarken, however, differs from these, in that it is an uneven plateau cut up into numerous small valleys, the waters of which drain into two large water systems. The eastern and biggest one empties into the North sea, or rather, the Skagerak, at Skien, and the other empties into the sea near Arendal. Telemarken consists of two parts, Upper and Lower Telemarken, the two parts being quite distinct.

The parish of Mo with its sub-parish of Skafsaa lies at the extreme upper end of the big, or rather long, Lake Bandak. When our folks lived there, their nearest trading and market place was Skien, seventy miles away by boat, down that long, narrow Lake Bandak, down the turbulent river joining Bandak and Lake Norsjö, then down the river again into the city of Skien.

Coming down was comparatively easy, rowing down stream, but the trip home again meant rowing against the stream. The trip took two days going and two or three days returning. However, the navigation facilities have since been improved by canals and today the trip can be made in about as many hours as it took days when our fathers lived there. It was about like when our fathers hauled wheat to Milwaukee in the early days in this country.

When our folks lived in Norway there were seven farms that were called the Felland farms. On these farms were seventeen tenant places or "husmans-plass." I never knew the names of all the tenant places or to which farms they belonged. The seven Felland farms were:

Söstog—Meaning in English south house

Norstog—North house

Upistog—Upper house

Austistog—East house

Nistog—Nether house, or it might mean new house

Nigar—Nether farm, or it might mean new farm

Rofshus—Perhaps a corruption of "Rolfs hus" or house of Rolf

FELLAND-REINDAHL FAMILY HISTORY

The tenant places and the farms they belonged to are as follows, those that I know of:

Söstog—Runningen

Norstog—Sigurdsli, Rui, Juvi

Nistog—Fles

Nigar—Dagsbeiti

Rofshus—Kalbast, Teksle and Monsverk

—————?—Koporhaugen

—————?—Nyhus

These seven farms and their tenant places were built fairly close together. A settlement like this was called a "greenn."

In a mountainous and thinly settled country like Norway it was a great advantage socially as well as for protection to live in little settlements like this. Collectively this settlement was called "Feddan Garane."

Each of these seven Felland farms had also some pasture and hay meadow up in the mountains. There they had their chalet or "sæter." Söstog Felland had one sæter. It also had three haysheds named Kalheim, Driobu, and Sjaaheim. On Midsummer's day (Jon-sok) one of the women folks and one of the youngsters would move up to the sæter with the cattle and stay there until Cross Mass (Aug. 24). The youngster would herd the cattle and the woman would make the milk up into butter and cheese. A little later the men folks would lock up the valley home and come up to the sæter to cut hay and haul it into the three haysheds or "höibu" as they called it. When winter came and the weather and sledding were good they would haul the hay home to the valley. It was seven American miles from Söstog Felland up to the sæter.

How long the Söstog Fellands had lived in Mo we don't know, but we have reliable records back to 1750. There is reason to believe that the family from time immemorial had lived on the same farm.

The same, I think, is true also of the Reindahl family. I have records of them back to 1725 and of the Upistog Fellands back to about 1750.

The Austistog Fellands are in fact two families. Of the Larson branch I have records back to about 1765 and of the Gunderson or Kili branch back to 1820.

As far as I can see the Austistog Fellands were no relation to the Söstogs, Upistogs, and Reindahls of the old generation. However, most of us of the present generation are related through our mothers, the descendants of the old "Slesvigor" Mikkel Mandt, progenitor of the very prolific Mandt tribe whose members are now scattered over all the upper parishes of Telemarken and over a big part of Norwegian America.

This Mikkel Mandt came to Mo about 1750. He was married when he came. His wife's name was Else. He had left Slesvig or Holstein and came to Norway by way of Sweden.

One of Mikkel Mandt's granddaughters, Gunvor Rasmusdatter Mandt, married the forefather of the Austistog Fellands, one Olav Larson. This Olav Larson was born about 1765. He married this Gunvor about 1796. They lived at Fyresdal or rather on the high plateau or "hei" between Fyresdal and Skafsaa, but on the Fyresdal side of the dividing line between the two parishes. My informant, old Bjorgulv Larson of Madison, did not remember the name of the farm but said it was a lone place high up in the mountains, a big and good farm divided into two or three holdings. About 1810 or 1814 this Olav Larson bought the Austistog Felland farm in Mo and moved there, thereby founding the Austistog branch of the Fellands. (See Mandt chart).

One of the peculiarities of the dialect of the uppermost parishes in Telemarken is to substitute "d" for "l," such as Taddeiv for Talleiv, Hadvor for Halvor, and so on. Therefore our name was in everyday usage pronounced "Feddan" instead of "Felland."

According to old family tradition our name "Felland" is derived from "Fæ land" meaning in English "cattle land" from "Fæ" (cattle). In fact, I have seen it spelled "Falland" in old letters and documents.

I took for granted that this theory of the origin of our name was correct, until I had a talk on the subject with our learned cousin, Prof. O. G. Felland of St. Olaf college. As you know, we pronounce our name with a short sound of "e" in the first syllable, and no particular accent of syllable. Now the professor claimed that were our name derived from "Fæ land" it would still, regardless of present spelling, be pronounced with a broad sound of "æ" in the first syllable. In other words, the first syllable would be heavily accented thus: "Fa'lland"; or to put it still another way, it would have a long drawn out first syllable like this: "Fa-a-a'lland."

He thinks rather that our name was once "Fjelland" (Fjell means mountain) and that the "j" has in course of time disappeared. If this theory is true it would explain perfectly the present spelling of "Felland" and also the pronunciation.

However, I am sure neither theory can be proven without having access to the old church and military records in Norway and perhaps not even then.

THE EMIGRATION

Read at the family reunion held at the old Felland homestead on the 90th anniversary of the Felland family in America

This is the 90th anniversary of the arrival of our parents and grandparents from Mo, Telemark, Norway, to this farm, then owned by their cousin, Vetli Norgarn. Vetli had come from Norway in 1843 and bought and settled on this farm that same year and built this house you see here, the same fall, or rather, he built a one-room log cabin. The bedroom and pantry and the upstairs were added to it by Gunnar G. Felland, Carl Felland's father, a few years later. This pioneer dwelling, I think, is the oldest remaining house in this township and one of the oldest in Dane county.

Our family had lived on and owned the Söstog Felland farm for generation after generation as far back as we have any record of. But now the emigration to the wonderful new land across the Atlantic ocean had started. Three families of our near relatives emigrated in 1843: A cousin of our father, Aslak Runningen, and family, another cousin, Vetli Norgarn, who built this house. These were from Mo parish. From Skafsaa, a neighboring parish, came a family related to us named Seltveit. The primogeniture land system was the law in Norway, that is, when the landowner died or became so old that he did not care to farm any longer the farm went to the oldest son. As a rule there would be little or nothing left for the younger sons and the daughters after the parents were provided for. That was one of the main reasons for the big emigration from the farm districts in Norway in the early days. Our grandfather had three sons, Gunnar and Vetli and Olav. The two oldest, Gunnar and Vetli, were married, the youngest, Olav, unmarried. Of the three daughters the two oldest were married to landowners and the youngest daughter, Sigrid, was single.

After a family pow-wow it was decided to sell the old homestead and found new homes in the promised land beyond the sea.

Grandfather had served in the war against Sweden in 1808-1809. He came back in broken health unable to do much hard work, so he took up silversmithing as a trade, married a neighbor girl, Else Upistog Felland, and ran the farm mostly with hired help until my father became big enough to do the hardest part of the work. Gunnar, the oldest son, Carl's father, was a cripple, one of his legs being nearly six inches shorter than his sound leg. That trouble made it very hard for him to do farm work; but he learned silversmithing and was also a fine blacksmith.

Grandfather sold the old homestead that had been in the family for centuries and made ready to start early in the spring, but he was taken sick and died, so the family had to have the estate go through probate court before they could start on their long journey.

At last they were ready to start. My mother was not sure of the date they started from the old farm, but it must have been the 15th or the 16th of May, because my mother told that when they came down near Ulefos they could hear the loud shouting of the Seventeenth of May celebration. At Kraakeröy, or Kragerö, they got transportation to New York on a small Norwegian brig, "George Washington," with Captain Kook, but first they had to go into Tveitstrand and take on a cargo of pig iron for New York. I never heard when they started from Tveitstrand nor when they came to anchor in New York harbor; but they were nine weeks and two days from Tveitstrand to New York. From New York they went up the Hudson river to Troy by steamer; from Troy up the Erie canal to Buffalo on the infamous canal boats. The canal boats were pulled by one horse. I don't remember how many days it took them to get to Buffalo. While on the canal the men folks mostly walked. There were gardens and orchards along the canal at many places and ripe fruits tempted the younger folks. At one place they saw some big, bright, red fruit on low bushes. Oh, they looked good; one of the boys sneaked up and filled his pockets and came back to the others, but when they got their teeth into the fruit it was all off. It was tomatoes. They had never tasted tomatoes before and they seemed most disagreeable. From Buffalo to Milwaukee by steamboat was a pleasant trip. On landing in Milwaukee the health officers discovered a child belonging to another party sick with smallpox. Consequently they were taken out of the city and quarantined on the lake shore north of the city about where the statue of Leif Erikson stands now. In a day or two they found transportation to Koshkonong to Vetli Norgarn's log cabin, which we see here; the journey ended the 11th of August, 1846.

The party starting out from Mo were Mrs. Else Felland, widow of Gunnar G. Felland, her oldest son Gunnar, born 1816, and his wife, Thone Nevestveit, and baby son Gunnar; my parents, Vetli G. Felland, born Aug. 21, 1819, and his wife, Astrid Mandt Reine, and son Gunnar, aged three years, and daughter Else, aged one year; daughter Sigrid, born 18822 (?), and Olav, the youngest, born 1826, and my mother's family; her parents, Olav Mandt Reine, born about 1765, his wife Ingeborg, and their children: Gunhild, Rasmus, Mikkel, and Olav, and three young unmarried men: Aamund Larson Austistog Felland, father of Albert Larson in Town of Burke, Talleiv Kvaalen, best known here as Talleiv Maland or "Præriskrubben," and one Halvor Aslakson, who died as a wealthy bachelor in Winnebago county, Iowa, about thirty years ago.

FELLAND-REINDAHL FAMILY HISTORY

That same fall, the three Felland brothers purchased this farm from Vetli Norgarn, and Vetli went and bought some unimproved land only a mile west from his first place. That place is known as Norgarn to this day although it is in the possession of another family. The Felland brothers owned and operated their farm jointly until Olav, the youngest brother, married two or three years later. Then he sold his equity in the farm to his elder brothers. Then my father built a house in the south end of the farm and moved there. About ten years later they divided the land legally and both of the brothers added more land to their holdings.

Their sister Sigrid in the meantime had married a young man from the island of Skaatøy near Kragerøy named Thorbjörn Ellefson Skotøy. He owned a farm two miles west of the Felland farm. He had settled there in 1843. The farm goes by the name of Skotøy to this day although he sold it and moved to Boone county, Iowa, in 1868.

My maternal grandfather, Olav Mandt, from the farm Reine in Mo, bought a hundred acre farm from a young bachelor named Per Simen, one mile south from the Felland place. But he died in the fall of 1849. The next summer my grandmother sold the place to Östen Lunde from Laardal in Telemark, and moved with her family to Wau-paca county. That part of the state was known among the Norwegians as "Indilandet" and there were all kinds of land to be bought at government price at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre.

Now the Felland family is scattered all over the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from way up in Canada and down into Texas, out into the Hawaiian islands and even into China.

I never send out less than 100 announcements of our reunions and up to 150 for some special occasions.

EARLY DAYS IN AMERICA

The first of our folks to come to this country was, as you know, Vetli Norgaren. He was of the Upistog and Reindahl branch. His wife was Susanna Tveitan from Nissedal; and I have reason to believe that she was a sister of that Abraham Tveitan or Nordbö that married my father's oldest sister, Tone. They came here in 1843. And in the same year and most probably in the same company came another family related to us, viz.: Aslak Runingen. The Runingens lived on and took their name from the tenant place or "husman plads," Runingen, belonging to Söstog.

Just how they were related to us I do not know.

There was still another family related to us, viz.: The Seltveits from Skafsaa, that came to this country before our people. There are good reasons for believing that they came in 1843 and in company with the Norgarens and Runingens. Almost all the early immigrants came through New York up the Hudson to Troy, from there to Buffalo via the Erie canal on the infamous canal boats. Thence over the Great lakes to Chicago or Milwaukee by steamboat. Those coming in the thirties nearly all landed in Chicago. After 1840 most of them landed in Milwaukee and settled in various parts of Wisconsin. They settled in Muskego and other places on or near the lake at first. Later they found their way to Koshkonong, Blue Mounds, Spring Prairie, Coon Prairie, etc. Of those landing in Chicago, some remained in that city, but most of them wanted to get farming lands of their own and trekked out to Lee and La Salle counties—the so-called "Fox River Settlement." From there many found their way into Wisconsin to Jefferson Prairie, Rock Prairie, and Koshkonong.

Vetli Norgaren came to Koshkonong and bought his first land from Helge Sigurdson Grimsrud, from Tinn in Norway, and built a little log cabin in the fall of 1843. Probably Aslak Runingen and the Seltveit tribe also stopped there at first, before moving farther west into the Coon Prairie settlement in Vernon county.

I know that there are descendants of the Runingens there yet and probably of the Seltveit tribe. But I have been unable to trace them, nor able to trace how they are related to us.

As stated in another paper, our fathers decided to immigrate to the U. S. A. in the spring of 1846. On arrival here, the three brothers, Gunnar and Vetli, who were married, and Olav, who was single yet, bought from their cousin, Vetli Norgarn, his farm of 120 acres. They bought and held it jointly. Later they bought a "forty" of government land joining them on the east. When a couple of years later Olav was married, he sold his undivided one-third interest and bought 80 acres two miles farther west joining the farm of Torbjörn Ellefsen Skaatøy, who had lately been married to their youngest sister Sigrid. Torbjörn Skaatøy had come from the island of Skaatøy near Kraakerøy, in 1843 with two friends, Knut Ericson Helle and Per Simen.

Gunnar and Vetli lived together with their families for nearly two years in the little log cabin that Vetli Norgarn had built in 1843. In the early summer of 1848, Vetli moved into the cabin that he had built in the south end of the farm near the trail that served as a highway to Milwaukee in those days. The wheel ruts of that magnificent boulevard can still be distinctly followed over the Felland hills. These old wheelruts and the old dwelling house on Carl Felland's farm are the only remaining marks of the early pioneer days.

After a few years Vetli bought 80 acres adjoining on the west from a Sogning named Johannes Hesjedalen, and Gunnar had bought 40 acres to the north from Holstad. Gunnar had always worked the north half and Vetli the south, but in the early sixties they had the farm legally divided. After the Civil war Olav bought from a Mr. Fuller a 120-acre farm, well built up, about one-half mile from Gunnar's farm. At an early date they joined the West Koshkonong Norwegian Lutheran church.

In the early days the nearest market town was Milwaukee—75 miles away. It was a six or seven days' trip with either oxen or horses—three days going and three days returning and one day in Milwaukee for business. There were grist mills and saw mills and country stores in Janesville, Fulton, Cambridge, Rockdale, and Madison, but no market for any produce. The C. M. St. P. railroad came to Stoughton late in the fall of '53 and to Madison the following summer. There were few established roads, mostly mere trails meandering around hillsides and marshes; and the few so-called stage roads were not much better.

After the coming of the railroad, Janesville was for many years the principal trading place. Stoughton and Edgerton were mere hamlets.

Most of the Norwegian children attended the Norwegian parochial "omgangs" school. Only occasionally did they go to public school. In this "omgangsskole," which moved from farm to farm with three days to a week at each place, they got a thorough drilling in Luther's catechism, Pontoppidan's explanation, and Voght's Bible history, and a little smattering of writing and arithmetic. By the way, in the public schools, all things considered, they did not get any more, excepting that they became more proficient in English. The first teacher was Ole Knutson Travatten. But the teacher our older brothers and sisters speak mostly about was Jens Jensen Aggerholm, a Dane. He seems to have been a good teacher but rather strict compared to the teachers of our day. He must have had a keen sense of humor. His favorite punishment for non-attention to lessons was a pair of big horn rimmed spectacles without glasses that he would put on the nose of the delinquent youngster, telling him very gently that the glasses would improve his ability immensely in getting his lessons.

Later on he married a cousin of my father, Signe Lofto, from Skafsaa, Norway, and shortly afterwards moved to Minnesota and settled on a farm in Clay county, not very far from Moorhead. He died more than thirty years ago, leaving a big farm and two grown children, a boy and a girl.

In 1868 Torbjörn Skaatoy sold his farm here and moved to Boone county, Iowa, about twenty-five miles north of Des Moines.

Another relative of ours, Gunnar Levad, and wife, cousin of my father, went with them. In 1872 Gunnar Levad moved to Winnebago county, Iowa, where the family lives yet.

Torbjörn Skaatoy and his neighbors had settled on land with a disputed title and the farmers lost out and had either to leave the farms that they had built up or pay for the farms all over again. Torbjörn did not live many years after coming to Iowa, and the family, his wife and children, moved overland to Lyon county in western Minnesota where many members of the tribe have their homes now.

My father's other sister, Signe, was married to Eivind Tollefson Bakken, who bought the old Söstog homestead from grandfather Gunnar G. Felland in 1846. When her husband died, Signe sold the old home to strangers, I believe in 1868, and came with her family to America. She came first to Koshkonong but moved that same fall to Winnebago county, Iowa, settling in Mt. Valley township near Forest City.

The country there was new and the land swampy and unhealthy and living conditions not of the best. She lived only a few years, and is buried in the Winnebago church graveyard. Several of her children died early. Margit, wife of Gjermund Haatveit, died, leaving two little girls, and Store Tone, wife of Olav Haatveit, left five children. Several of her descendants remain in this part of Iowa, but most of them are scattered all over the country.

The eldest sister of the Felland family, Tone, died in Norway, but most, if not all, of her children came to this country and are scattered broadcast over the land, as the lot of most families is nowadays.

Gunnar Felland died in 1886, Olav and Vetli in 1896. They are all three buried in the West Koshkonong churchyards. So also is their sister Sigrid and their mother Else (our grandmother).

HISTORY OF FELLAND FAMILY REUNIONS

In the latter part of the nineties, the families of Andreas G. Felland, Trond Kjetilson Reindahl of the town of Burke, Dane county, Wisconsin, and Nils W. Ellefson Skaatøy of Madison began to hold family picnics and reunions on some Sunday during the summer, usually at one of the beautiful lakes near Madison. In course of time, the relatives living in or near Stoughton or Koshkonong, began to take part in these annual reunions, and the picnics were often held at Lake Kegonsa or on the Felland hills on the old Vetli Felland homestead in the town of Pleasant Springs in Dane county. But during all these years it had just been an informal gathering, with no program nor definite aim and no records left or kept.

In 1921 it was suggested that the annual picnic be held at the old Gunnar G. Felland homestead and on the 11th day of August, this being the 75th anniversary of the arrival of our tribe at its final destination, the rude pioneer log-cabin of Vetli Trondson Norgarn, on Aug. 11, 1846.

The reunion in 1922 was held on the lawn of the Louis Felland home. In 1923 it was held at the home of Knut Reindahl on Lake Monona, near Madison. In 1924 it was held at the East Side park in Stoughton and at this meeting it was decided to establish a formal organization to be known as the "Felland Family Association," with a full set of officers, president, secretary and recorder in one, treasurer, and a committee of three on arrangements and program. It was also decided to hold the annual reunions on the Sunday nearest to the 11th day of August of each year in honor of the day on which our folks arrived. All descendants of the Söstog, Upistog, and Austistog branches of the Felland tribe are considered members of the association. So are the Reindahl branch.

The 75th anniversary reunion of the Felland family was held at the old G. G. Felland homestead on the 11th of August, 1921. At that meeting it was decided to hold the annual meetings on the Sunday nearest to the 11th of August.

Reunions since then have been held as follows:

- 1922 at Louis Felland
- 1923 at Knute Reindahl
- 1924 at East Side Park, Stoughton
- 1925 at Gunder Felland (Burke)
- 1926 at "Felland Hills" (80th anniversary)
- 1927 at Sugar Bush (Lönaodden) (81)
- 1928 at Stebbinsville (82)
- 1929 at Felland Hills (83)

A WARNING ABOUT NAMES

Many members of the younger generations who are not acquainted with the differences between the old Norwegian system and the American system of family names will no doubt be greatly puzzled by the confusion of family names contained herein, so a word of explanation and warning is appropriate here.

The Norwegian system of family names was a very logical result or outgrowth of the geography of the country. This system would probably be impossible in any flat, level country. However, it served the purpose admirably in Norway.

Norway is extremely mountainous, consequently the population is restricted to the valleys. Each tillable nook and corner of a valley has its little settlement, and each little settlement has its particular name.

Each farm in this little settlement is usually occupied by the same family for generations, so each farm also has its particular name. Therefore when a farm does change hands, it is the people and not the farm that must change names. People come and people go but the land remains. There are still standing in Norway ancient log-houses left from Viking days, yes, from even prehistoric days, houses with old Runic inscriptions on them.

So we see that our forefathers in Norway had no definite family name but changed it according to where they lived.

Suppose Gunder Felland of the Söstog farm in the Felland settlement had a son named Vetli. Vetli's full name would be Vetli Gunderson Söstog Felland. Now suppose Vetli married the female heir to the Reine farm and moved to Reine. Among his new neighbors he would be known as Vetli Gunderson Reine. Then suppose he and his old neighbors and new neighbors all emigrated to America. When he settled in America his old neighbors would still call him Felland, his new neighbors would call him Reine, and he himself might choose Gunderson for his official name. At any rate he would have quite a collection of names to choose from. Therefore we sometimes see three full brothers come to America and each choose a different family name.

Also you will notice a confusion of spelling of first names. This is because in Norway the various valleys are so isolated from one another that different dialects have sprung up and therefore names are both spelled and pronounced differently in different localities. Also there are great variations in the same names even in the same locality. To illustrate, we see the following variations of the same name: Ole,

FELLAND-REINDAHL FAMILY HISTORY

Ola, Olaf, Oluf, and Olav. It appears that the old original form of the name from Viking days was Olaver.

Another thing that may be puzzling is the fact that the old Norwegians to show respect to their parents or grandparents often named more than one of their children after them. Thus in one family we have two Tones, "Lille" (little) Tone and "Store" (big) Tone, also two Ingeborgs, "Store" Ingeborg and "Lille" Ingeborg. In another family we have an Ole, an Olaf, and an Olav.

To avoid confusion in regard to names, the reader must bear all these facts in mind. He must remember that there are many different ways of spelling the same name, so the spellings given here should not be taken too seriously.

FELLAND FAMILY

To avoid confusion in the following Family History, each generation is assigned a Roman numeral. Each member of a generation is assigned an Arabic numeral. Also, each family is separated by a heavy black line, therefore all the names contained between two black lines are brothers and sisters. The parentage of each group of children is given in the biography of the first child only.

GENERATION I

The first of the Söstog Fellands that we have record of was Gunnar Felland and his wife Tone (also spelled Thone). He was born about 1755 or 1760 and married in 1780. Further knowledge I have not. They had nine children. I do not know which of the children was the oldest or in what order they came. The only one of them that came to America was "Gamle" Anne.

GENERATION II

II-1. GUNNAR GUNNARSSON FELLAND, my grandfather, was born between 1786 and 1789. He served in the war against Sweden in 1808-1809. He came back in broken health, so he learned to be a silversmith. He married a neighbor girl, Else Vetlesdatter Upistog Felland (Reindahl III-5), in 1810 or 1811. It is from her brothers and sisters that the Reindahls, Oftelies, and Vetlesons are descended. (See Reindahl Dept.) Grandfather Gunnar ran the farm mostly with hired help until his sons were old enough to do the heavy work. His oldest son, Gunnar, had a crippled leg, so most of the work fell to my father, Vetli, the second son. Grandmother Else was born July 19, 1789, the daughter of Vetli Upistog Felland and wife Signe Trondsdatter Sandaak. Grandfather Gunnar died in the spring of 1846, a few weeks before his widow and some of the children emigrated to America. His widow, Else, died Aug. 23, 1878, and is buried at West Koshkonong, Dane county, Wisconsin.

II-2. KARL GUNNARSON SELTVEIT. Married Ingeborg Bakken. They had two children.

II-3. GJERMUND GUNNARSON HAUGEN. Married Else Haugland. (See Mandt IV-48). They had five children.

II-4. "STORE" INGEBORG FELLAND. Married Torjus Jaardal "Kongen." They had two sons that I know of, Gunnar "Kongsonen" and Olav.

II-5. "LILLE" INGEBORG FELLAND. Married Olav Haugland. (Mandt IV-44). They had three children that I know of.

THE FELLAND FAMILY

II-6. "STORE" TONE FELLAND. Married Gunnar Rontveit (Lofto), klokker in Skafsaa parish. They had seven children.

II-7. "LILLE" TONE FELLAND. Unmarried.

II-8. THORBJORG FELLAND. Married Halvor Knutson Levad. They had three children.

II-9. "GAMLE" ANNE FELLAND. Her first husband was Torjus Omsberg, with whom she had three children. Her second husband was known as "Gjætar" Olav with whom she had one daughter Birgit. I think Anne was born in 1802 and died Nov. 25, 1879, in America.

GENERATION III—FELLAND

III-1. TONE FELLAND. Born about 1811 to Gunnar Gunnarson Felland (II-1) and wife Else Upistog Felland. Tone married Abraham Nörbö (or Norby) Tveitan in Nissedal, Telemarken, Norway. She died in Norway, but most if not all of her six children came to America and are scattered around the country.

III-2. SIGNE GUNNARSON FELLAND. Born Oct. 17, 1813. Married June 16, 1831, to a gentleman from Froland named Eivind. His is an example of the Norwegian complexity of names. I find him variously listed as Eivind Tollefson—Bakken—Lein—Felland. Most of their 10 children took the name Felland. Signe was widowed in Norway. In 1868 or 1869 she and her children emigrated to Mt. Valley township in Winnebago county, Iowa. She died Aug. 3, 1883, and is buried at Winnebago church.

III-3. GUNNAR GUNNARSON FELLAND. Born Oct. 26, 1816. He married Tone Nevestveit (Mandt V-76), who was born Nov. 27, 1820. Gunnar was a cripple, so he took up silversmithing, which he learned from his father, who was also a silversmith. They emigrated to America in 1846 and settled at Koshkonong. Gunnar died July 24, 1887. Tone died Jan. 18, 1913. Both buried at West Koshkonong. They had nine children, three of whom died young.

III-4. VETLI GUNNARSON FELLAND. Born Aug. 19 or 24, 1819. Married June 20-22, 1842, to Astrid Reine, who was born Feb. 9, 1821, the daughter of Olav Rasmusson (Mandt) Reine and second wife Ingeborg Mikkelsdatter. They had two small children when they came to America in 1846. Their six other children were born on the Felland homestead in town of Pleasant Springs, Dane county, Wisconsin. Vetli and his two brothers spent the first winter in America with their cousin, Vetli Norgarn, who had come over in 1843. The Felland brothers bought his farm and worked it jointly until the youngest brother, Ole, bought a farm of his own. Gunnar and Vetli then divided their holdings, each taking half, and so it remains today. Vetli died Aug. 24, 1899. His wife Astrid died July 5, 1896, and is buried at West Koshkonong.

III-5. SIGRID FELLAND was born 1823. Came to America in 1846. Married on May 3, 1848, to Thorbjörn Ellefson Skaatøy, who was born June 24, 1814, on the island of Skaatøy near Krakerøy, Norway, and came to America in 1843. They had seven children. They lived at Koshkonong till 1868, when they moved to Boone county, Iowa. There Thorbjörn died Oct. 16, 1876. He is buried at Xenia, Ia. The rest of the family moved to Lyon county, Minnesota, where many of their descendants are today. Sigrid died Sept. 12, 1906, and is buried at West Koshkonong.

III-6. OLAV GUNNARSON FELLAND was born June 30, 1826. He came to America in 1846. He married Hage Austistog Felland and farmed near Stoughton, Wis. They had nine children that grew up and three that died in infancy. Hage was born Dec. 24, 1829, and died Apr. 30, 1922. Olav died May 26, 1899. They are buried at West Koshkonong.

III-7. GUNNAR CARLSON SELTVEIT. Son of Carl Gunnarson Seltveit (II-2) and wife Ingeborg Bakken. Married Taarand Luanne (Mandt V-16). They had nine children.

III-8. TONE SELTVEIT. Married Aamund Möstol (Mandt IV-16). They had several children but I know nothing more about them or their descendants.

III-9. GUNNAR ————. Son of Gjermund Gunnarson Haugen (II-3) and wife Else Haugland (Mandt IV-48). He married Helga Thompson, but I know nothing of their descendants. I do not know what last name Gunnar and his brothers and sisters adopted, but I think some of them at least took the name Gjermundson.

III-10. TONE ————. Married Saavi Nedrebö. I know nothing of their descendants.

III-11. TAARAND ————. Married Olav Underdal. They had five children and came to America with them.

III-12. GUNNAR ————. Married a daughter of Jon Runningen of Sun Prairie, Wis., an old Civil war veteran.

III-13. OLAV ————. Married Tone Upistog. I know nothing of their descendants.

III-14. GUNNAR ————. Son of "Store" Ingeborg (II-4) Felland and husband Torjus Jaardal, "Kongen." Of him and his descendants I know nothing except that his nickname was "Kongsonen" and his wife's nickname was "Peisa."

III-15. OLAV _____. Of him I know nothing.

III-16. GUNNAR _____. Son of "Lille" Ingeborg Felland (II-5) and Olav Haugland.

III-17. RASMUS (KALBAST) HAUGLAND. Born Oct. 18, 1834. Married Sigri Sönderland, who was born Dec. 6, 1848. They settled in Winnebago county, Iowa, and had seven children.

III-18. TONE HAUGLAND. Married Gunnar Opsal or Oxal. They settled on a farm on Route 1, Colfax, Wis. They took the name Kinney. They reared a family of four children. They had five other daughters who died young or left no descendants.

III-19. TORGIER _____. Son of "Store" Tone Felland (II-6) and Gunnar Rontvøit (Lofto). Gunnar was klokker in Skafsaa parish. I rather think Torgeir and his brothers and sisters took the name Lofto.

III-20. TONE _____.

III-21. INGEBORG _____. Married Olav Kirkebö (klokker in Skafsaa).

III-22. TONE _____. Came to America and married an Irishman named McGrath and I think their descendants are to be found in or near Grand Rapids, Wis.

III-23. INGEBORG _____. Married Olav Seltveit (in Skafsaa). They had several children: Olav, Thorbjorg Kringlaak, and others.

III-24. SIGNE _____. Married Jens Jensen Aggerholm, a Dane. Jens was formerly a school teacher at Koshkonong in the 1850s and 1860s. They moved to Clay county, Minnesota, not far from Moorhead. They farmed there and reared one son and one daughter.

III-25. GUNNAR _____.

III-26. KNUT LEVAD. Son of Thorbjörg Felland (II-8) and Halvor Knutson Levad. Knut married Else Felland (Hesjedalen) (IV-8) in Worth county, Iowa. They had a son named Halvor.

III-27. INGEBORG LEVAD. She had a son named Kjetil. His last name was something like Mennes or Menaas.

III-28. GUNNAR LEVAD. Married Birgit (III-32), the daughter of "Gamle Anne" and Gjætar Olav. They had five children near Forest City, Ia.

THE FELLAND FAMILY

III-29. MARGIT OMSBERG. Daughter of "Gamle" Anne Felland (II-9) and her first husband Torjus Omsberg. Margit married someone named Thor or Thoris.

III-30. TONE OMSBERG. Married someone named O'Brien. They farmed north of Madison, Wis., and reared several children. Her relatives sometimes referred to her as "Tone Sylum" because she lived near the asylum. They have many descendants in the neighborhood, I believe.

III-31. OLAV —————. I know nothing of him.

III-32. BERGIT —————. Daughter of "Gamle Anne" and her second husband Gjætar Olav. Birgit married Gunnar Levad (III-28) and reared five children near Forest City, Ia.

GENERATION IV—FELLAND

IV-1A. ISAAK ABRAHAMSON. Born in Norway to Tone Felland (III-1) and Abraham Nörbö, or Tveitan (also spelled Tvedtane). Isaak came to America when a young boy. Worked on a farm near Forest City, Ia., and was injured fatally in a runaway accident with a grain wagon in threshing time.

IV-1B. JACOB ABRAHAMSON. Born Sept. 6, 1834, in Norway. Married to Marken Stigen from Tördal, Norway. She was born Oct. 14, 1836. They settled at Forest City, Ia. He was a carpenter by trade. Jacob died Jan. 31, 1894, and his wife died Jan. 1, 1911. They left seven children, Tone, Johanna, Martha, Nels, Abraham, Isaak, and Marie. The children took the name Jacobson instead of Abrahamson. The information about this family has come to me after this book is already in the hands of the printer, so instead of upsetting the whole book by placing each descendant in his respective generation, I shall list them right here:

(1) TONE JACOBSON. Born Dec. 24, 1856. She married Torger Tallackson, who was born Nov. 17, 1841. They farmed near Fertile, Ia. Tone died July 18, 1930. Torger died Apr. 13, 1894. They left six children as follows:

(a) Julius Tallackson. Born June 21, 1880. Farmed the homestead near Fertile, Ia. Died Oct. 29, 1936. Unmarried.

(b) Jacob Tallackson. Born May 26, 1882. Lives at Fertile, Ia. Unmarried.

(c) Marie Tallackson. Born Dec. 4, 1885. Died Sept. 16, 1905.

(d) Tillie Tallackson. Born May 6, 1888. Married Merle Logne, who was born Sept. 11, 1879. They live at 103 Second street west, Mason City, Ia. They have five children as follows:

Clair Virgil Logne. Born Mar. 4, 1908. Married to Ruth Barney. Lives at 600 Bradshaw street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Leslie Logne. Born May 10, 1910. Married to Lou Johnson. Lives at Hanlontown, Ia.

Varonne Logne. Born Sept. 8, 1915. Married to Richard Barr. Lives at 204 Sixth street southwest, Mason City, Ia.

Francis Logne. Born Mar. 24, 1919.

Roger Logne. Born Aug. 5, 1925.

(e) Bessie Tallackson. Born Feb. 6, 1891. She is a missionary in Africa.

(f) Lewis Tallackson. Born May 1, 1893. Married Pearl Kent.

THE FELLAND FAMILY

Lives at 506 Broadway, Greenville, Miss. One child, Peggy Lou, born April, 1926.

(2) JOHANNA JACOBSON. Lived in Mason City, Ia., before she married Gifford Talmadge of Austin, Minn. He was a railroad engineer and they resided at Austin for many years. They had three children, Robert, Lloyd, and Ruth, and they are all married, but I have no more record of them.

(3) MARTHA JACOBSON. Married Lon Chilson and moved to Canada. Know there were two children, Mabel and Inez, and both are married. There were more children in the family but I have no more record of them.

(4) NELS JACOBSON. Lived near Forest City, Ia., and married Louise Sharp of that city. There were two children, Willie and Tillie, who reside somewhere in the South, probably Oklahoma.

(5) ABRAHAM JACOBSON. Was married, but I have no record of his family or where they live. He passed away many years ago.

THE FELLAND FAMILY

THE FELLAND FAMILY

THE FELLAND FAMILY

REINDAHL FAMILY

The first Reindahl or Upistog Felland we have record of is the grandfather of my grandmother, Else Vetlisdatter Upistog Felland. (See Felland II-1).

GENERATION I—REINDAHL

I-1. OLAV TORGERSON REINDAHL. Born about 1725. Married to Tore Upistog Felland. The following are their descendants.

GENERATION II—REINDAHL

II-1. VETLI UPISTOG FELLAND. Born about 1750. He married Signe Trondsatter Sandaak. Their five children constitute Generation III.

GENERATION III—REINDAHL

III-1. TROND VETLESON REINDAHL. Married an Asjerd. They had five children (IV-1-5). Trond died in 1855.

III-2. OLAV UPISTOG FELLAND. Married Margit Haugland. They had nine children.

III-3. TORE UPISTOG FELLAND. Married Saavi Listog. They had four or five children.

III-4. MARGIT UPISTOG FELLAND. Married, I believe, to Olav Undal (perhaps Underdahl). I have no further knowledge of them or their descendants, if any.

III-5. ELSE UPISTOG FELLAND. Born July 19, 1789. Married in 1810 or 1811 to Gunnar G. Felland (Felland II-1). They had six children. When their family was grown they decided to emigrate to America. Shortly before they were about to leave, Gunnar died. This postponed their departure a few weeks until the estate could be settled. Then Else and her four youngest children and their families sailed for America and reached Koshkonong Prairie, Dane county, Wisconsin, Aug. 11, 1846. (See Felland department for their descendants). Else died Aug. 23, 1878, and is buried at West Koshkonong.

GENERATION IV—REINDAHL

IV-1. VETLI NORGARN or VETLISON. Son of Trond Vetlison Reindahl (III-1) and wife Asjerd. He married Susanna Norby (Nörbö) or Tveitan of Nissedal, Telemarken. Susanna was born Sept. 29, 1810. They came to America in 1843 and settled at Koshkonong. The house he built is still standing, with additions. Three or four years later he sold his holdings to his cousins, the Felland brothers, who came over in 1846. This land is now the old Felland homestead. He then bought a farm one mile farther west, which is still known as Norgarn. They had several children. Upon his death, his wife married again to Persimon Norgarn and had two more children: Andrew Norgarn, who married Netta Baanos or Thompson, and Maria, who married Iver Erdahl. Susanna died Oct. 30, 1888.

IV-2. KJETIL TRONDSON REINDAHL. Married in 1843 to Ingrid Nilsdatter Sletveit from the parish of Seljor. She was born about 1819, a granddaughter of "Sterke Nils," the Norwegian strong man of legendary fame. When Kjetil died, his wife sold the farm and with her seven children came to America via Quebec in 1869. They settled in the town of Burke near Madison, Wis. Ingrid died but a few years later.

IV-4. KNUT KJÖNESTÖYL. Married but left no children.

IV-5. SIGNE —————. Married Tollef Tveitan of Skafsaa, a brother of Abraham Tveitan. (See Felland III-1). They had no children.

IV-6. ELSE —————. Daughter of Olav Upistog Felland (III-2) and Margit Haugland. Else married Aanund Haukaasmo and had four children. Else also had eight other brothers and sisters, but I know nothing more about them, so I cannot allot them their numbers.

IV-7. ELSE LISTOG. Daughter of Tore Upistog Felland (III-3) and Saavi Listog. She married Vetli (Morgedal) Listog. They had five children.

IV-8. SIGNE LISTOG. Married a Flöle.

IV-9. HAGE LISTOG. Married a Tveile.

IV-10. HAGE LISTOG. Married an Undal or Tunjori.
